NERVOUS DEBILITY,
However obscure the cause may be which contributes to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting, as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of

NERVOUS PROSTRATION,
Is characterized by a general languor or weakness of the whole organism, especially of the nervous system, obstructing and preventing the ordinary functions of nature; hence there is a disordered state of the secretions; constipation, scanty and high-colored urine, with an excess of earthy or lime sediment, indicative of waste of brain and nerve substance, frequent palpitations of the heart, loss of memory and marked irresolution of purpose, and inability to carry into action any well-defined business enterprise, or to fix the mind upon any one thing at a time. There is great sensitiveness to impress, though retained but a short time, with a flickering and fluttering condition of the mental faculties, rendering an individual what is commonly called a whistle-minded or flicker-minded man.
This condition of the individual, distressing as it is, may with a certainty be cured by THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND LOTHROP'S TONIC PILLS,

The Chimes of Long Ago.

[Written for the half century anniversary of the New York House of Refuge, by Mrs. Susan K. Bourne, Ellington, Conn.]
Ring, sweet chimes of long ago!
All our story telling;
Sing the thoughts that in us glow,
Every bosom swelling;
Sing the tale of noble deed,
Every barrier leaping;
Sing the sowing of the seed
We with joy are reaping!

Softly sweet your echo rolls,
Mourning cadence keeping,
Telling of those noble souls
Who in death are sleeping;
Be our lives their monument,
In our hearts their glory—
Lives on high endeavor bent,
Saved from crime's dark story.

Fifty years have passed away
Since the first seed-sowing;
Fair the harvest waves to-day,
In the sunshine glowing;
Ring, sweet chimes of long ago!
Send the echoes flying,
Till the notes of crime and woe
Sink in silence dying.

Joyously the happy years
Golden sheaves have treasured,
Saved from vice and sorrow's tears
Lives for good unmeasured;
Ring, sweet chimes of long ago!
All our story telling;
Sing the thoughts that in us glow,
Every bosom swelling.

May we all, with heart and hand,
Precious lessons learning,
Join the march of virtue's band,
Highest honors earning;
Ring, sweet chimes of long ago!
Send the echoes flying,
Till the notes of crime and woe
Sink in silence dying.

Joe Black.

The first time in my life that I ever saw Joe Black he was out on the sidewalk in front of the house where he lived. It was a sharp winter morning. He had a coat on, but not a hat. A boy who goes out of a winter morning without any hat on, will be almost sure to catch a cold, get a sore throat, and perhaps have the croup, and be very sick indeed.

There were a number of boys out on the sidewalk, too, and Joe was looking on to see them play, rather than playing with them. Some of them were sliding along on the ice in the gutter, others were snow-balling, and all seemed to be having a fine time.

Pretty soon a man came along. Joe was busy watching the boys, and did not see or hear the man until he was close upon him. The man had a heavy bundle upon his shoulder, and called out rather angrily to Joe, "get out of the way!"

Joe was not a little frightened at the harsh tone in which the man spoke to him, and got out of the way as quickly as he could.

Some boys would have answered this rude man rudely back, and perhaps told him to get out of the way himself; but Joe took the roughness very meekly.

The next morning Joe was out again; only this time he had not got as far as the sidewalk, but was standing on the doorsteps, looking up and down the street, and wondering what he should do. While he was so standing and wondering, the same man came along who had spoken to him so unkindly the day before. He had what looked like the same bundle on his shoulder. The man did not see Joe, but Joe saw him and recognized him. But he kept perfectly still, and watched him go by.

Presently the man, as he walked along, put one hand into his side pocket, and pulled out his handkerchief. In so doing he pulled out one of his mittens, too. It fell, unseen by him, upon the sidewalk. When he put his handkerchief back in his pocket he did not miss the mitten. There it lay, just where it fell, the man walking faster and faster away.

Some boys in Joe's place would have been glad that such a cross man had lost his mitten, and would hope that he might never find it.

Not so Joe Black. He saw what had happened—the handkerchief taken out, the mitten fallen and left lying on the walk, the man unconscious even that he had dropped it. I don't know that he so much as thought of the cross way the man had spoken to him the day before. If he did, he did not cherish any resentment. So off he started down the steps and along the walk until he came to the mitten. Picking it up, he ran on after the man as fast as his legs could carry him. Instead of calling out to him he waited until he got close behind him, and then gently touched his hand.

The man turned around to see who touched him, and there stood Joe, holding up the mitten.

"Well done," said the man, recognizing the mitten, and feeling in his pocket at the same time. "Well done! Where did you find that?" And he took the mitten, and put it back in his pocket.

Joe only wagged his tail—for he was nothing but a great Newfoundland dog, Joe Black, and he couldn't speak a word. But I have sometimes thought that he was more of a gentleman than the man who dropped the mitten. At any rate, he knew how to return good for evil. Do you?—EDWARD ANNOTT, in the Independent.

Bill and Yancey.

The exciting debate on the Amnesty bill, in which Mr. Hill, of Georgia, and Mr. Blair, of Maine, were the most conspicuous figures, brings to mind the affray between Mr. Hill and William L. Yancey, of Alabama, which caused the latter's death. The circumstances were first publicly given by Mr. Henry Waterson, the present editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

According to this published account, it was toward the close of the second session of the first Confederate Congress that Yancey broke from the councils and influence of Mr. Davis, and became, with Henry S. Foote, a leader of the opposition to Mr. Ben. Hill, then Senator from Georgia, had likewise changed his front, and was remarkable for the earnestness, personal interest and persistency with which he sustained the measures of an administration to which his allegiance had been given but late in the day. Mr. Yancey, it will be remembered, had returned from an unsuccessful mission to Europe, and was representing Alabama in the Confederate Senate. The question of a navy was under discussion in secret session. The debate ranged beyond parliamentary limits, and Messrs. Yancey and Hill became animated over the abstract doctrine of State Rights and the authority of slavery. High words passed, and finally the tie was given by Mr. Hill. Mr. Yancey leaped forward, and as he aimed a blow at his adversary, was caught in the arms of the latter and violently thrown back over a desk. Mr. Hill is a man of wonderful muscular development. Mr. Yancey was never very heavy, though lithe and active. In the fall his spine was seriously injured, and when the bystanders rushed upon the two and dragged the one from the other, the great Southerner lay unconscious upon the floor, with a little trickle of blood oozing from his lips. He was carried to his hotel, a vote of secrecy was passed, and the rencontre brushed up. No one in Richmond except that body of men knew of the circumstances for six months after. Meanwhile the victim did not recover. He dropped from day to day. He became listless, hopeless and vacant. He was transferred to his own home, where his convulsions ceased a few weeks before his death, which was tranquil and calm. He died without a hope of the success of the Southern Republic he had aspired to found and govern, and for which he had labored day and night for twenty-five years.

GETTING OUT OF BED.—Dr. Hill does not approve of the old doctrine which was formerly instilled into the minds of children—that they should spring out of bed the instant they awake in the morning. He says: Up to eighteen years old every child should be allowed to rest in bed, after the sleep is over, until they feel as if they would rather get up than not. It is a very great mistake for persons, old or young—especially children of sedentary persons—to bounce out of bed at the moment they wake up; all the instincts shrink from it and fiercely against it. Fifteen or twenty minutes spent in gradually waking up after their eyes are opened, and in turning over and stretching the limbs, do as much good as sound sleep, because the operations set the blood in motion by degrees, tending to equalize the circulation; for during sleep the blood tends to stagnation, the heart beats feebly; and to shock the system by bouncing up in an instant and sending the blood in overwhelming quantity to the heart, causing it to assume a gallop, where the instant before it was a creep, is the greatest absurdity. The instantaneous bouncing out of bed as soon as the eyes are open will be followed by a weariness long before noon.

A Patron Lost.

A German subscriber to the Journal recently called to advertise a lost cow, and according to the long established custom of this well-regulated print shop, we immediately wrote up a notice and figured up the cost of publication.

"Vat ish dat?" asked our friend, placing the butt end of his whip on our little sum of multiplication.

We informed him that it would cost him so much for advertising his lost cow three weeks.

"You make me pay for dat?"

"Certainly; we always take pay for advertising."

"You takes pay, eh? Vell, dat ish ven tam shynid. I scribe mit dat Shournal baper dese tree years, and now you sharge me yoost for von leetle advertise unguine gow."

"But we—"

"Xan you scribe mit dat Shournal baper?"

"But you—"

"You shlop my Shournal bapers, and I got some orders, py shimony, and you gomic leetle end dat horn oud."

"But, see here, friend—"

"I go right away and doud got sheated mit you py krashus. Tink you got some sleep mit a vessel, doud you? Sharge me yoost for advertise von gow! It was better uv you doud got me mit ven I come here, and I scribe mit dat Shournal more as tree year, but you makes me mad und you shlop mine bapers before I got it next dime. Dat ish vat man I am kind uv, py shimony!"

We tried to explain; we tried in vain; we lost him and a three weeks' advertisement of a "lost gow, py shimony!"—Lowell Journal.

COMMISSION MERCHANT AND DEALERS IN FERTILIZERS.

CHARLESTON, S. C. November 1, 1875.
Having been engaged for twenty years in the Guano Trade with constant success, I deemed it advisable to introduce Fertilizers under my own name and guarantee. I have made arrangements to have prepared a Guano under my inspection and control, called ROBSON'S COTTON AND CORN FERTILIZERS. This Guano is of the highest standard. It contains, among other valuable ingredients, three per cent. of Ammonia, one and a half per cent. of Potash, and fourteen per cent. of Available Phosphate. I also have prepared for me a COMPOUND ACID PHOSPHATE of the highest standard. These Fertilizers are compounded of the purest materials, and are manipulated and tested under the supervision of Dr. St. J. Ravenel, of this city whose name gives a warrant for their high character and adaptation for our soil. I offer these Fertilizers to Planters on the following favorable terms:

ROBSON'S COTTON AND CORN FERTILIZERS.
Cash $41 per ton; on time, $50.

ROBSON'S COMPOUND ACID PHOSPHATE,
Cash, $28 per ton; on time, $33.

Planters ordering immediately will be allowed to the first of April to decide which they prefer, cash or time. An order for a carload of eight tons will be sent free of drayage; but for a less amount $1 per ton will be charged. On orders for large lots from Grangers or dealers, a liberal discount will be allowed.

I take this occasion to return my thanks to those who have so largely patronized the Fertilizers hitherto offered by me, and in soliciting their favorable attention to another, I pledge my best efforts to merit a continuance of confidence by keeping the highest standard of Fertilizers adapted to cotton and corn.
